Monthly Investment Update

The Variety CKC Credit Opportunity Fund S GBP finished up +0.39% net for July and is up +2.26% YTD through July 31, 2023. Our monthly performance was solid considering the continued lackluster performance of interest rate sensitive instruments.

Credit markets performed well in July with spreads moving tighter across every rating class. Counteracting the spread strength was continued mediocrity of rate sensitive instruments. In high yield, the best performers were those that lacked sensitivity to interest rate moves. In fact, significant spread compression occurred in the lowest rated and weakest credits. At the same time, higher rated credits tightened somewhat but underperformed their weaker counterparts as a result of having little room to tighten and slightly higher interest rates.

While credit markets were firm and somewhat higher, equity markets were outright euphoric. For the second straight month, equity markets rocketed higher with tech leading improved market breadth. By month's end, most technical indicators were indicating greed overwhelmed fear with investors far more concerned with missing a powerful equity rally than they were with suffering losses. In fact, most investors welcomed the much anticipated 25 basis point hike from the Federal Reserve and the general theme was that this hike was likely the last or second to last hike of this cycle.

Our performance was driven mainly by the strength in our core portfolio. Our higher beta high yield bonds performed very well while our short duration investment grade and high yield bonds continued to grind higher. The travel space, our biggest overweight, stayed strong and allowed us to generate solid yields with a low duration, defensive portfolio. Trading continued to add positive alpha but was slower than we had hoped. We did see a slight pickup in the new issue calendar but we expected it would be more significant with a typically slow August ahead. Fortunately, August is off to a more robust start than we expected on the new issue front.

Looking Ahead

Going forward, we believe that continued higher rates will allow us to capture ever increasing yields for the portfolio. In addition, we believe that we will see the inverted yield curve continue to "uninvert" and create a broader opportunity set outside of the short duration bonds on which we have so heavily relied over the last 2+ years. While we think rates are going higher in the short run, we think the rate peak may finally be in sight within the next 6 months. As a result, we are beginning to look more broadly at the opportunity set across all maturities in corporate credit and we expect that we will be able to complement the short duration portfolio with an interesting group of longer duration opportunities before the end of the year.
